QUESTION ONE

(a) The following facts relating to a hypothetical tax case in your country have been presented to you. The case related to the applicability of withholding tax on interest accrued in the audited books of a taxpayer.

1. Ale Ltd. entered into an agreement with a contractor under which it agreed to pay interest on any contractual fees paid late. A number of payments due to the contractor were delayed and incurred interest. The interest was not actually paid but the obligation to pay was accrued as a liability in the respondent's books.
2. As interest is a business expense, Ale Ltd. expensed it as a tax deductible item thereby reducing its corporation tax liability. The revenue authority undertook an audit and demanded payment on the withholding tax on the accrued interest. Following the demand, Ale Ltd. filed the matter before a tax tribunal.
3. The revenue authority claimed that by recognising accrued interest as a liability in its books of account, Ale Ltd. acknowledged that interest was credited to the account of the third party and therefore fell within the definition of the term "paid" under applicable tax laws.
4. At the tax tribunal, Ale Ltd. presented the following arguments:
 - The term "paid" in tax law can only mean delivery of money and discharge of settlement.
 - Since Ale Ltd. neither settled the outstanding contractual fee nor paid any interest charged, even though the interest was recognised as a liability in its books of account, no withholding tax was due for that transaction.
 - As per tax laws, tax is withheld upon payment of the expenses thus payment is a necessary pre-requisite for withholding tax to apply.
 - The settlement of an obligation may be through receipt of cash, cheque or other mode of settlement or discharge and an accrual is therefore not a discharge of a debt. Payment denotes the discharge of a debt or liability and it was premature for the revenue authority to demand payment of the withholding tax before the actual payment of interest. By doing so, the revenue authority clearly exceeded its powers.

Required:

As a Certified Public Accountant and tax expert, you have been engaged by the revenue authority to counter the arguments by Ale Ltd. for consideration by the Tax Tribunal.

Prepare your professional opinion making reference to the facts above, applicable tax laws and decided tax cases to support your position. (12 marks)

The promoters are aware of the two main financing avenues for any company; equity financing and debt financing. They already have raised equity capital amounting to Sh.500 million as their base capital which falls short of their capital requirement of Sh.1 billion. They have approached a consultant to give them advise on how to source the additional Sh.500 million that they require. The consultant has assembled his analysis into two mutually exclusive financing sources based on the promoter's request as follows:

Option - A (Equity only)

	Sh. "000"
Base capital - Equity	500,000
Additional capital - All equity	500,000
Total	1,000,000

	Sh. "000"
Base capital - Equity	500,000
Additional capital - Long term debt	500,000

It is assumed that both the additional equity and additional debt will require an annual payment of Sh.40 million and Sh.50 million for dividend and interest respectively every year.

5. She would be eligible to be included into the company's attractive medical scheme which only covers management staff. The amount of the benefit is capped at Sh.1,500,000 per year.
